

Build the College of Medicine
community
one stethoscope at a time.

PennState
College of Medicine

To:
Our Newest Students

From:
YOU!

The stethoscope is versatile. It serves as an essential tool for any medical professional, but for our students, it is also a symbol marking the beginning of their medical education. Once equipped with their first stethoscope, Penn State College of Medicine students can begin their journey with confidence.

We're asking you, our most recent alumni, to support our newest students by supplying them with that first stethoscope. With a gift of $100, you can provide incoming MD and PA students with a stethoscope to use throughout their education and beyond. And thanks to a generous group of our alumni, every gift made between today and May 31, 2019 will be matched one to one up to $9,000—a chance to turn support for one student into a gift for two.

Our goal is to see alumni gift 180 stethoscopes, enough for a full incoming class of MD and PA students. Send a message from day one that this community is there for one another. Celebrate the next cohort of medical professionals and make a gift today by using the enclosed form or visiting engage.pennstatehealth.org/stethoscopes.

Together, we can show our incoming students that a College of Medicine education starts with a white coat, a stethoscope, and a community of alumni with arms wide open.

