 Inaugural Chair of the Law School Fund

"We believe that many alumni have a special interest in supporting and aiding their law school. A law school graduate will give to further the efforts of their professional school because of their special interest in the legal profession and the administration of justice... The nation's law schools provide a unique service, and we believe that many lawyers prefer to support this service by direct contributions to their own school."

The Law School Fund has benefitted tens of thousands of students over the course of six decades. With your support, the tradition will continue for generations to come.

Dear SALUTATION,

For the past 60 years, the Law School Fund has bolstered every aspect of life and learning in the Quad. The oldest annual fund at the University of Michigan, the discretionary nature of the fund enables the Law School's leadership to be flexible and support a range of campus activities.

From scholarships and seminars to visiting scholars and student organizations, the Law School Fund makes the Michigan Law experience possible. Students benefit from a variety of courses that empower them to explore different career paths, including the year-long MDefenders Public Defender Training Institute, the Legal Practice Program, summer internships, and even mini-seminars, one credit courses often held in a non-classroom setting. In addition, the Law School Fund has proved critical in supporting student needs while allowing us to shift to an unprecedented hybrid learning environment in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Law School Fund is fueled by the generosity of our alumni community. So much happens on campus because many former students have chosen to give to the fund every year since graduation. Will you help us celebrate six decades of the Law School Fund's impact by making a gift today?

Thank you for helping us to provide opportunities, pivot in times of crisis, and ensure the Michigan Law experience.

Sincerely,

Janice Glander
